THE WITCHY REPORT

Issue # 13

A hand is holding a single white rose with green leaves against a light brown, textured background. The rose is in full bloom, showing many layers of petals. The hand is positioned in the lower right, with fingers gently gripping the stem. The overall composition is simple and elegant.

LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

Let us suspend our imaginations and consider this: time as a construct of subjectivity.

You are born today. Perhaps the last time you were conscious in the waking world was 1812, or 1903 or 504 b.c. Your soul as the Yoruba believe, was called to your mother's womb in this moment, because your unique self is needed by the world. Now what is your purpose and how do you answer this calling?

This upcoming eclipse will be the last that many of us will see in our lifetime. As the cosmic shadow passes over our small bodies, what tiny truths and wide eyed wisdoms can we garner from its universal glare? That compared to the power of the heavens, we are still incredibly futile to nature's force? How humbling is this message in a time when human beings are the number one most destructive agent of the Earth, the only living planet we are aware of in this galaxy?

In the wake of this cataclysmic event, what comes to totality for you in your present consciousness? Are there certain themes during these strange days that are converging, perhaps loudly and with effective dissonance, inviting you to peer closely? It may be essential to take this moment to listen, and understand what we have coming to fruition in the days ahead.

In sublime afterthoughts,
Remedy the Blue

AMATA DOODS

Aimee Wilkinson (Amata Doods) is a St. Louis-based artist that has been practicing pen and ink illustrations for 17 years. Pieces have a focus on clean line work and achieve depth through complex layering of patterns in an asymmetrical abstract composition style. All works are created in a stream of consciousness flow and depict spiritual energy, symbolism, and attempt to bring the invisible building blocks of life into the foreground of figures.
